

You Helped Make A Difference For Local Teachers & Students

This July, Bubbles Express customers showed up in a big way for local students. Thanks to your generosity, we collected a mountain of school supplies for Free2Teach—and the excitement was obvious when we delivered them. Bin after bin, the donations kept coming, and we're proud to have a community that is willing to pitch in when it matters.

Are Car Wash Memberships Really Worth It?

The answer is pretty simple: it depends on your lifestyle and how often you wash your car.

A membership can make financial sense if you wash your car more than once a month. But the math isn't the only thing to consider. How you use your vehicle and how much you value convenience matter, too.

Think About Your Lifestyle

Your car might be a bigger part of your life than you realize.

Do you drive every day? Your vehicle is naturally going to pick up more miles, dirt and grime.

Do you work in or around your vehicle? Realtors, traveling notaries, salespeople and home-service professionals often meet clients at their vehicles or use their cars as part of their work. In those cases, a clean vehicle can be part of the professional impression you make.

Are you constantly driving rental cars? Check the rental company's return requirements before spending your own money on a wash. If they don't require it, there's no reason to spend your money maintaining a car that isn't yours.

Do you have kids, pets or lots of passengers? Your vehicle may simply get dirty faster than someone else's.

There's no universal "right" number of car washes. Your routine should reflect how you actually use your vehicle.

Hazy Windshield? Here's What's Causing It.

Ever clean the inside of your windshield, only to find that it still looks hazy or streaky when the sun hits it? You're not imagining it—it's an oily film created by the materials inside your car. Plastics, vinyl, and other interior components can slowly release compounds as they heat up, which can settle onto the inside of your windshield. The result is a stubborn film that seems to smear around instead of coming off. And it's more than just annoying.

While there's no universal fix, there are a few different methods for cleaning it that have become popular over the years:

Isopropyl alcohol: Make a 50/50 solution of distilled water and isopropyl alcohol. Apply it to a microfiber cloth and clean the inside of the windshield, drying it with a second, clean cloth.

Dish washing Detergent: Considering the build up is an oily film, it's no surprise that a lot of people find success using a kitchen dish soap since they are formulated to break down grease. Add a few drops to some warm water, and clean with a microfiber cloth or glove.

Magic Eraser: Probably the most controversial option, magic erasers have been said to be very effective removing the haze from windshields. However, a lot of people warn against this, as these sponges are abrasive and, as such, may damage the surface of the glass.

Once you've managed to get most the film off, keeping your windshield clear is a much easier task if you make a routine to keep it clean.

The next time you're at a Bubbles Express getting a wash give the inside of your windshield a wipe down, even if it doesn't appear dirty. The microfiber cleaning towels available to use at every location are infuse with glass cleaner when laundered. It only takes a few seconds, and it can help keep that stubborn haze from coming back.

Are Memberships Really Worth It?

Then There's the Convenience

A membership isn't just about getting more washes for your money. It's about making car washing part of your routine.

See pollen all over the hood? Wash it.

Get caught in a muddy rainstorm? Wash it.

Heading out for the weekend? Wash it.

If you're already a member, you don't have to decide whether today's wash is worth spending another $20 on. And, if you're in a hurry, Bubbles Express members can use the members-only lane, letting you skip the payment process and get through the wash faster.

Having Trouble Deciding?

If you're only washing your car once every couple of months, stick with individual washes.

But if you're washing 2 or more times a month, a membership may be an easier—and more economical—way to take care of your vehicle.

At Bubbles Express, memberships have no long-term contract and no commitment. If your driving habits change, you travel more, start parking in a garage, sell your vehicle, or simply decide a membership isn't giving you enough value, you can change or even cancel it whenever you want.

With memberships starting as low as $22/month for unlimited washes, we have options for every need and budget.

There's no prize for having the cleanest car in town. But if a clean, well-maintained vehicle fits your lifestyle, a membership can make keeping it that way pretty simple.

Elijah Greer

CSA

If there's one thing that seems to come naturally to Elijah Greer, it's finding the joy in life's small moments.

At Bubbles Express, that means the people he works with and seeing the smiles on customers' faces. It's also why Elijah approaches his work with a simple philosophy: keep pushing, because the reward is worth it.

That mindset has shaped what he's learned during his time at Bubbles. Some of that he credits to his Site Leader, Wendy Gamblin. But Elijah also believes no one should ever be afraid to make mistakes because that's how we grow. He is always looking to learn, picking up new skills and knowledge wherever he can.

Outside of work, Elijah enjoys riding his four-wheeler, working on vehicles, fishing, hunting, and spending time with his three-year-old miniature schnauzer, Bluey. Elijah loves to travel, and hopes to someday visit all 50 states and beyond, with aspirations of touring Greenland at some point.
